Excerpt: . . . surely will be, cane farming on a large scale will be impossible. The inevitable result will be that America must pay more for its sugar and its opportunity for becoming a great sugar exporting Nation will have passed. The time has come when we must decide for all time whether we shall be sugar merchants or sugar producers. America, engaged in a great War, finds herself in a position where there is no sugar that would be available for consumption in the United States if our coasts were blockaded by foreign powers such as Germany's now are, except 1,000,000 tons of domestic production, representing less than 25 per cent of the consumption of the country. It is evident, therefore that every encouragement should be given to this, one of our most important domestic industries. --Herbert Hoover, U. S. Food Administrator. -. ---- he There are large areas of lands of variable fertility and white limestone subsoil in the hill regions of Matanzas, Habana, and the Eastern Provinces. Many of them require terracing to prevent washing. EXPERT OPINION The very best evidence that can be adduced as to the practicability of a large cane sugar industry within the United States is the fact that in the same section of the world, but 100 miles distant, our neighbor--Cuba---is producing high grade sugar cheaper than in any other section of the world. For convenience of reference, however, extracts from some of the more important expert opinions of...
