Macfarlane, which may be found elsewhere, is published a history of the family. Col. Macfarlane was born Jan. 10, 1830, in Glasgow, Scotland, where he lived until he was eighteen years old. Whatever education he had at school was secured before he was sixteen years old. For two years he was employed as a clerk in a dry goods store in Glasgow, when he decided to seek a home in the New World, and leaving Glasgow on the sailing vessel, George Washington, in August, 1848, arrived in New York after a voyage of thirty-five days, anticipating the coming of his parents, whom he met at Shreveville, New Jersey. Mr. Macfarlane learned the tinners trade at Mt. Holly, N. J., his wages for the first year being 25, in addition to his board and washing. In 1860 he opened a tin shop at Allentown, N. J., and there the opening of the Civil war found him. His store was removed to Medford, N. J., and there, in answer to the first call of President Lincoln for three-year soldiers, he raised a company, which was accepted by Col. Goslin, the commander of an independent regiment. The most of the regiment had already seen active service, but the company raised by Mr. Macfarlane was fresh from civil life, and had had no experience in the front. Mr. Macfarlane asked that an experienced captain be placed in command of his company, which was...
