Why reorganization is necessary.--In addition to the general reason calling for reorganization of science in secondary schools, which have been stated in the first section of this report, the following considerations apply particularly to chemistry: 1. The average person looks upon chemistry as a mysterious, occult science, tinged with necromancy. This almost superstitious ignorance prevents appreciation of the chemist's power to serve society. In industry it is likely to result in great economic waste through failure properly to utilize raw materials, develop byproducts, and apply chemical methods of control to processes of manufacture. The high-school chemistry course in its reorganized form should attract a larger number of pupils and do much to supplant this ignorance by a measure of broad understanding. 2. In the past, chemical laws, theories, and generalizations have usually...
